

Urban Green Space

My research examines the tension between local economic development and sustainable development, using urban green space as a lens. Urban green space can increase the value of nearby property, anchor regeneration efforts, provide ecological protection, and foster social interaction. Yet, such spaces are often the centre of a tug-of-war between development and conservation. Must cities choose one or the other or can they strike a balance?

Meredith Whitten

MPhil/PhD
Regional Planning

m.whitten@lse.ac.uk

Follow me  @urbanparksgirl