

Photo blog – Revealing the Invisible: rural wage workers in Ethiopia and Uganda

A new photo exhibition at the SOAS entitled Revealing the Invisible: rural wage workers in Ethiopia and Uganda provides an insight into the lived experiences of people who depend on wage employment in the production of tea, coffee, and flowers. This exhibition is from a four-year, DFID-funded research project: Fairtrade, Employment and Poverty Reduction in Ethiopia and Uganda. Follow this link to read the full report for this project.

Here we see some of the homes where wage workers live in one site

Portrait of a woman carrying heavy bundles

Women at work cleaning coffee beans

Revealing the Invisible: rural wage workers in Ethiopia and Uganda will be showing in the Wolfson Gallery in SOAS Library from Friday May 16 to Tuesday June 3 Mondays-Thursdays 9am-8pm; Fridays 9am-7pm; Saturdays 10.30am-6.30pm; Sundays – Closed.

---

May 16th, 2014 | Development | 3 Comments

---