

International Development Graduates in The New York Times

‘Investing in a Future for Asia’s Young Women’

SINGAPORE — Mari Sawai and Mario Ferro, who graduated in 2009 from the Masters in Development program of the London School of Economics, founded Wedu last year, a program to help women in Southeast Asia gain access to higher education through microfinancing, mentorship and counseling.

Read the full article here.

October 23rd, 2013 | Department Alumni, Topical and Comment | 0 Comments

⊞