

Snow In April: a blizzard of citizen journalism blogs.lse.ac.uk/polis/2008/04/06/snow-in-april-a-blizzard-of-citizen-journalism/

2008-4-6

It's 'weather porn' time again. For all readers who live in places where snow-fall is usual, please look away now. For us in England, especially London, serious snow-fall is a novelty and serious snow in April is positively outlandish. This felt like a version of The Day After Tomorrow filmed on Hampstead Heath.

Once every decade there is enough snow to sledge on Parliament Hill and this time it was at a weekend so everyone could enjoy it. And it is also a wonderful opportunity for the public to post their pictures. Here's the BBC's.

- Copyright © 2014 London School of Economics and Political Science

