The Telegraph used to be seen as a cruddy old newspaper for ancient and reactionary Britons. It is now a much more modern offering editorially, and behind the scenes it has a cutting edge digital newsroom. It also has a very user-friendly blogging community. If you want to blog but would like a ready-made site with a ready-made network of other bloggers then sign up to My Telegraph. The Telegraph's technology correspondent Shane Richmond explains it all here. I gave it a whirl and I have to say it was a piece of cake to set up and use and I have met a very different crowd of people from the sort that frequent this blog. Of course, on my own Telegraph blog I cheat by cut and pasting from here, but I think it is a great way to get blogging.
