

More Next Blog»

Spatial Economics Research Centre

Thursday, 5 May 2011

London (still) getting away with it

In my January lecture "How did London get away with it?" I used house prices as one of the economic indicators to support the idea that London was doing well (both relative to expectations and to other regions in the UK). Latest figures from the Land Registry suggest that this continues to be the case. In the year to March 2011 London saw prices increase by 0.8%, while the North East saw falls of 9.3%. The average change for England and Wales was a 2.3% decrease.

Posted by Prof Henry G. Overman on Thursday, May 05, 2011

Recommend this on Google

No comments:

Post a Comment

Newer Post

Home

Older Post

Subscribe to: Post Comments \(Atom\)

